15 Testify Late W. B. Martin 'Unduly Influenced' by Half-Brother.

Church Among 7 Defendants In Fight Over Estate of Ex-Hardware Co. Owner.

Fifteen persons had testified on the witness stand in Richland county common pleas court today that they believed the late William B. Martin, former owner of the Martin Hardware company, was incompetent when he made a will distributing an estate valued at approximately $75,000 before his death 15 months ago.

The testimony was heard by a jury in a trial in which Allen B. Martin, Mansfield, a nephew of the late hardware dealer, seeks to break the will on the grounds that the aged man was incompetent and "unduly influenced" by Roeliff B. Martin, a half-brother, in making his will. The plaintiff received a $1,000 bequest in the will.

Church Left $500.

Seven defendants, including the First M. E. church of Mansfield, and the International Society for Crippled Children, each of which received $500 under the will, are named in the suit.

Nearly 40 witnesses have been subpoenaed in the case, the first important will suit heard in common pleas court in two years.

Testimony began before noon yesterday and the case was not expected to go to the jury before late tomorrow.

The defense, which has called 21 witnesses, will open its case this afternoon with Atty. William F. Black and R. E. Hutchinson as counsel. Atty. C. F. Creelman, Mansfield, and Jesse Vickery, Cleveland, represent the plaintiffs.

Called to the witness stand shortly before noon today, Allen Martin, plaintiff in the case, testified that his uncle had been "in poor health since 1934" and that House Takes Up Resolution For Probe; Speed Promised.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The house will consider today a senate-approved resolution for a joint congressional investigation of the Tennessee Valley authority. Passage of it is amended by the house rules committee was considered certain.

The major amendment added to the resolution, originally sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., assured the investigation that they need not overlook any matter pertaining to "the administration and policies" of the New Deal's $400,000,000 vast power and regional planning project.

If passed by the house as amended, the resolution will be sent back to the senate. There it was expected that the changes will be accepted readily.

Scenes in Barcelona, Spain, after Gen. Francisco Franco's insurgent bombers had blasted the loyalist metropolis and capital for 41 hours in a series of raids. Tall buildings were shattered completely to their foundations. Tram cars and automobiles were destroyed as they moved. Electrical and water services were disrupted. No place seemed safe.

Won't Stand For Higher Gas Rate, Mayor Hunter Asserts

While council's utility committee prepared to go into action on the touchy problem of a new gas rate, Mayor Claude M. Hunter today sounded a flat warning that he "wouldn't stand for a rate higher than the present one."

Hunter, who sponsored a rate ordinance three years ago a rate ordinance calling for an even lower rate than the present one, asserted today that he hadn't changed his mind about gas rates in the three intervening years—he recalled that he had opposed the gas company argument that its rates to Mansfield consumers had to be predicated on the Ohio river gate rate on the grounds that the company had sufficient gas "right in our own back yard" to meet Mansfield requirements.

"I still feel the same way about it," he asserted today.

Hunter's ordinance, which called for a flat 45-cent rate, never came up on the floor of council as the result of a technicality, and

With all possible clues exhausted, the sole plane which has been cruising over California mountains in a hopeless search for the missing TWA plane which carried two young Mansfielders, was withdrawn from the Fresno airport today and sent back to San Francisco, United Press dispatches said.

The ship will be held in readiness however, to investigate new clues, L. W. Goss, TWA superintendent who has been in charge of the search said.

The plane disappeared March 1 with nine persons aboard, among them J. Tracy Dirlam, 22, and his sister Mary Lou, 19.

1,100 See Players' Sparkling 'First Lady'—All Records Fall

By JANE WILLIAMS
Smashing all attendance records in their history, the Community Players brought their 12th season to a close last night with a sparkling presentation of "First Lady" before an audience of 1,100 at Senior High school auditorium.

The near-capacity attendance topped by 300 the figure set by "The Trial of Mary Dugan," presented six years ago, and the outstanding presentation, at least from an attendance standpoint, up to last night.

"First Lady," a scintillating drawing room comedy by Katherine Dayton and George S. Kaufman proved one of the most interesting plays ever presented by the Players and the audience (a noisy one with a chronic cough) expressed its appreciation in no uncertain manner.

"First Lady" is distinctly a

STATE ACTS ON CROSSINGS HERE

Orders Railroads to Provide Full-Time Protection at Five Grades.

City officials today had been notified by the state utilities commission that three railroads running through Mansfield had been allowed 90 days to provide full-time protection at five grade crossings where traffic surveys were made recently.

W. E. Harrington, inspector for the commission, told Mayor Claude M. Hunter that the commission had approved his recommendation that three roads—the Erie, Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania—be allowed 90 days to comply with the recommendation that full-time protection be provided at the five crossings in the city, now only partially protected.

These crossings include those of the Pennsylvania at East Fifth street, now unguarded between 10:30 p. m. and 5:30 a. m.; the Erie at North Diamond street, unprotected from 5:30 p. m. to 5:30 a. m.; B. & O. and Erie at North Mulberry street, unprotected from 11:30 p. m. to 5:30 a. m., and the Erie double track crossing at North Main street, unprotected from 11:30 p. m. to 5:30 a. m.

Harrington said he had based his recommendations on the report of a traffic survey conducted by the city last month which showed that 1,573 motor vehicles and 439 pedestrians had crossed the unguarded tracks at the five intersections in one night.

He also had pointed out to the commission, he said, that the figures were somewhat below normal, due to the fact that many of the industrial plants in the city were not operating on their normal night schedules.

Agitation for protection at all city grade crossings was started early in January following a fatal accident at the Bowman street crossing of the B. & O.

Advocates Commission Free of Politics to Guide City Parks

Needed most besides enthusiasm for park development is a definite plan and the establishment of a park commission that is free of politics, A. D. Taylor of Cleveland, nationally known authority on landscape architecture, told the Mansfield Public Parks association last night at North Lake Park pavilion.

Taylor, a former professor of landscape architecture at Ohio State university, addressed a banquet attended by 100 which concluded an inter-park card tournament sponsored by the association.

The speaker, introduced by Secretary Paul W. Williams of the Chamber of Commerce, asserted that the only way to accomplish park development was to set up a master plan for future years and then strive as a group to develop that plan.

"You must have an ideal—the objectives which you are aiming at," Taylor said, "and a desire to accomplish that purpose only by devoting time and energy to that cause."

Advocating additional park areas for the city of Mansfield, he advised the acquiring of new lands to provide for proper park areas for future generations.

"There is no evading the issue, if you don't pay the price to purchase park property today, some future generation will have to pay (Continued on Page 5, Col. 8)

HOLLYWOOD—(U.P.)—The last chapter of the tangled marital career of Vera Reynolds, popular film star of the silent era, and Robert Ellis Reel, scenarist, had a happy ending today.

Mexican Oil Decree Stirs Near-Revolt

Cardenas Calls Congress to Consider U. S. and Labor's Protests.

(By Associated Press)
MEXICO CITY—President Cardenas summoning an "urgent" session of congress to help him, was confronted today with near-revolt by a segment of labor, and a vigorous United States protest against expropriation of the $400,000,000 oil industry.

The American protest was presented to the foreign ministry yesterday by Ambassador Josephus Daniels, and a high Mexican official indicated it was an energetic note demanding explanation how Mexico intended to pay for the 17 American and British oil properties.

The indications of labor dissatisfaction came from Carlos Flores, labor department inspector in Tampico and member of the powerful union there which controls 6,000 ex-employees of the Aguila (Royal Dutch Shell) company.

Denies Harmony Claims.

Asserting he spoke for other members of his union, Flores contradicted assertions by union headquarters in Mexico City that all was peaceful among the workers.

"We are all discontented. We were far better off before," Flores said.

Tampico reports said every storage tank there was filled with oil and there was no place to put crude or refined oil since the lack of foreign markets created by expropriation of the companies.

Asphalt, packing, shipping, marine and other departments of all shipping terminals were closed, and nearly 3,000 part-time workers were released.

A permanent commission of congress was to meet late today to set a date for the congressional session, probably for the second ten days in April.

The United States protest, it was felt here, brought United States-Mexican relations to the most strained point since the 1927 conflict over control of the oil industry. A settlement was reached then by the late Ambassador Dwight Morrow.

MORE MEASLES

119 New Cases Reported, Total for Month Hits 317.

The spread of measles in Richland county showed no signs of abating today as health authorities said 119 new cases of the disease were reported in the past week to bring the total to 317 since the first of the month.

Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, said the total number of cases reported so far this month was nearly 50 per cent more than the figure for the previous month when 223 cases were reported.

Of the new cases, 79 were in the city and 40 in various parts of the county.

While there is no cause for alarm, Dr. Rehder warned of the dangers of complications resulting in pneumonia. He pointed out that children's diseases were unusually prevalent at this time of the year. The state department of health last week reported 2,544 cases of measles in the state, 300 more than the week previous.

Four Measures to Be Joined Into One Bill as Substitute For Senate Program.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Sen. Edward R. Burke, (D-Neb.) today led a movement to send from 75,000 to 100,000 expressions of opposition to the executive reorganization bill to the house, which today cleared the way for quick action on the measure.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—The special reorganization committee overrode Republican objections today and voted to ask the house to start six hours' debate on the administration's reorganization legislation tomorrow.

It formally ratified a decision of Democratic members to unite four bills, previously approved by the committee, in a single bill as a substitute for that passed Monday by the senate.

Vote 7 to 2.

Chairman Cochran (D., Mo.) said the vote on that procedure was 7 to 2. The only Republicans on the committee, Representatives Taber (R., N. Y.) and Gifford (R., Mass.), formed the minority.

Taber asked for public hearings on the legislation, he said, but was turned down on another party vote.

Cochran said the house would be asked to meet at 11 a. m. tomorrow—an hour earlier than usual—to start work on the reorganization measure.

No changes were made in the form of the four house bills.

Gifford said, "to postpone the bill a few days until the public mind could have assurance we were giving it careful consideration and was informed we would retain the comptroller general's office."

Davey to Address Dem Rally Here Next Wednesday

Gov. Martin L. Davey, who cancelled a speech scheduled for Friday night in Mansfield, will speak next Wednesday night at a rally in the Senior high school auditorium, county Democratic leaders said today.

Date for the talk was set at a meeting in Columbus yesterday of E. B. Kallmerten, Richland county Democratic chairman, with Mrs. Myrna Smith, the governor's personal secretary.

Davey called off his speaking engagements this week due to the death in St. Louis of his sister-in-law, Mrs. James Davey.

Political observers predicted the governor will announce his candidacy for a third term next Tuesday night at a rally in Youngstown. He will speak at a Franklin county Democratic rally Monday night.

The Mansfield meeting, planned as a Democratic campaign bid-lifter in the 17th district, will be attended by party leaders from nine counties in northcentral Ohio, including the six in the district.

The rally is being arranged by officers of the county Democratic executive committee.

A musical program, including numbers by the Mansfield high school band, will be presented during the rally and candidates in the 17th district may be invited to speak briefly, party leaders said.

Carl E. Stough Appointed to City Recreation Commission.

The appointment of Carl E. Stough, 193 Grant street, to the city recreation board to fill the unexpired term of C. R. Ross, who resigned yesterday, was announced today by Mayor Claude M. Hunter.

Stough is assistant superintendent of maintenance in the county highway department. Ross moved out of the city. His term expired Dec. 31.

Other members of the board are Paul R. Tappan, Floyd Dent, W. C. Mead and H. W. Arlin.

FINANCING OF RELIEF FACES COUNCIL AGAIN

How to Raise $50,000 to Be Considered at Special Session Tomorrow.

The problem of what to do about financing the city's relief load for the balance of the year, which will involve the expenditure of approximately $50,000, will come up for discussion at a special meeting of council tomorrow night.

The meeting has been called by Mayor Claude M. Hunter for the purpose of discussing the relief situation with emphasis on the financing problem.

With the proposal for a bond issue at a special election temporarily dropped because of election costs that would run about $3,500, the question of placing a relief levy on the ballot at the August primaries appears to be gaining favor with some of the councilmen.

The recent visit of City Auditor Paul L. Kelley and Solicitor Marion D. Ward to the attorney general's office in Columbus where they talked over the levy idea, and council's failure at a previous meeting to discuss a special relief bond election also indicates this method of financing will be seriously considered.

With council facing requests for additional police, water extensions, park improvements, it appeared that some discussion will be given to the question of seeking a levy at the primaries to cover all the issues.

Ward said the matter of consolidating the issues had been talked over with an assistant attorney general and while they had agreed that it was being done in some cities, he had not given city officials a ruling on the question.

The solicitor said he was of the opinion that the relief question should be placed on the ballot by itself and allowed to run on its own merits.

YOUTH GETS LIFE

Ohioan, 19, Sentenced in Holdup Slaying of Policeman.

HAMILTON, O.—A three-judge court decreed life imprisonment today for 19-year-old Chester Francis, of West Elkton, who ten days ago pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with the holdup slaying of Patrolman Aaron Laubach on Jan. 27.

The decision, climaxing a day of testimony heard by Judges P. P. Boli, M. O. Burns, and Hugh Gilmore, was read by Judge Boli.

A Farmer's Diary

March 29.

LAST night and much of the forenoon warm spring showers refreshed all growing things. The grass and garden plants, young leaves and wild flower stems seemed to have grown a half inch during the forenoon.

This afternoon the sun came out. The wind was balmy and bore to me the hint of fragrant violets and narcissus; I caught the scent of damp woodland mold and the fertile topsoil drying in the sun.

This evening I walked beside the orchard to see how well the clover field had grown. I found a splendid stand of deep-rooted plants whose tops waved in the breeze like plumes. I smiled in pride to see a growth so vigorous in March.

As I walked nearer the fence I saw where a woodchuck had eaten off the tender leaves and stems for a range of twenty yards or more. The culprit's den was fifteen feet away—a fresh-dug lookout beside a rugged stump. My clover was at stake, and I did not like to see it ruined.

I hurried home and got a three-tined pitchfork. Stealthily I moved below the bank along the road and reached his burrow from the south. I saw him, quite a distance out, eating greedily.

Quickly I stuck a piece of wood into the farthest hole and stepped upon the other.

His keen nostrils scented danger. He turned from feasting, and ran in awkward gallops as fast as his short legs would carry his pudgy body, toward his burrow. Within three feet of where I stood with pitchfork drawn, he stopped and raised up on his haunches with fiery eyes and snapping teeth . . . then at my threatening pose, he seemed to grow meeker and become the pleading suppliant.

My heart failed me. In this trying hour I threw the pitchfork far away, and stepped aside.

PLAYERS CLOSE YEAR IN TRIUMPH

drawing room politicians, with the White House as their objective. Heading the opposing camp was Melva Graham as Irene Hubbard, wife of a supreme court justice and imbued with an ambition to be the First Lady herself. Miss Graham, who is remembered for distinctive work with the Players in the past, was at her best in this role. Her big scene was the one in which she was alone with her husband, her boredom rising to a climax in which she asked for a divorce. Here she was highly convincing and human.

The three incidents where Mrs. Douglass and Miss Graham tossed thinly-veiled barbs of sharp sarcasm at each other over the tea cups were among the plays highlights, with Mrs. Douglass, the granddaughter of a late president, scotching once and for all Miss Graham's ambition to be "First Lady" as the play neared its climax.

Margaret Tinsley, who made her Players debut as Sophy Prescott, social secretary, has a sincerity and a naturalness which should make her a valuable addition to the Players, and Katherine Slusser, as the little southern girl, has a "natural" in the role, for her southern accent is the simon-pure article from below the Mason-Dixon line.

Florence MacDonald as Mrs. Creevy, with ribbons and badges on her breast and "six million women behind her," became a major character in a minor role. Everything that she said brought a chuckle or guffaw from the audience.

Frances Bein, who has done some excellent work with the Players in the past, had the role of Belle Hardwick, intimate friend of Lucy, and handled it with ease. With her were Madeleine Bar and Eleanor McCann (Mrs. John McCann) as Washington hostesses. Other women who played roles which created an authentic background for the play were Betty Osburn, Vangelina Cook, Jane Bacon and Mary Olive Hughes.

One of the noticeable features of the play was the costuming. The women players were stunning clothes throughout.

While the men played characters that were not particularly important to the action, their roles were more difficult to cast, because they didn't look particularly as senators, cabinet members and Washington politicians are supposed to look.

Herbert H. Schettler was Carter Hubbard, the supreme court justice with stomach trouble, and Ken Woodman was the "boy senator" from the West.

Gerald Swank was seen as Stephen Wayne, secretary of state and important only as the husband of Lucy; John McCann was the outspoken Senator Hardwick; Aloysius Stefanek had the role of Ellsworth T. Ganning, publisher of a large chain of newspapers; Harry Lowrey was George Mason, one of the preside-makers; and Daniel Reese was Charles, the butler.

Playing minor roles were Ferd Loykovitch, Ben Rawls, Robert Parker, Jules Corvington, and Steve Marlin.

Although she did not appear on the stage last night, one of the hardest workers to make the play a success was Mrs. William M. Layton, who was the understudy to Mrs. Douglass, learning every line and bit of action in the same role and "carrying on" at rehearsals when Mrs. Douglass wasn't present.

Sharing full honors for the success of the show is Helen Bacon, director, who worked for weeks with an unusually large cast, whipping them into shape for a smooth performance. She was assisted by Ben Goodenough, who is studying community theater work under her tutelage. The attractive sets—two of them—were designed and executed by Frank Forsee.

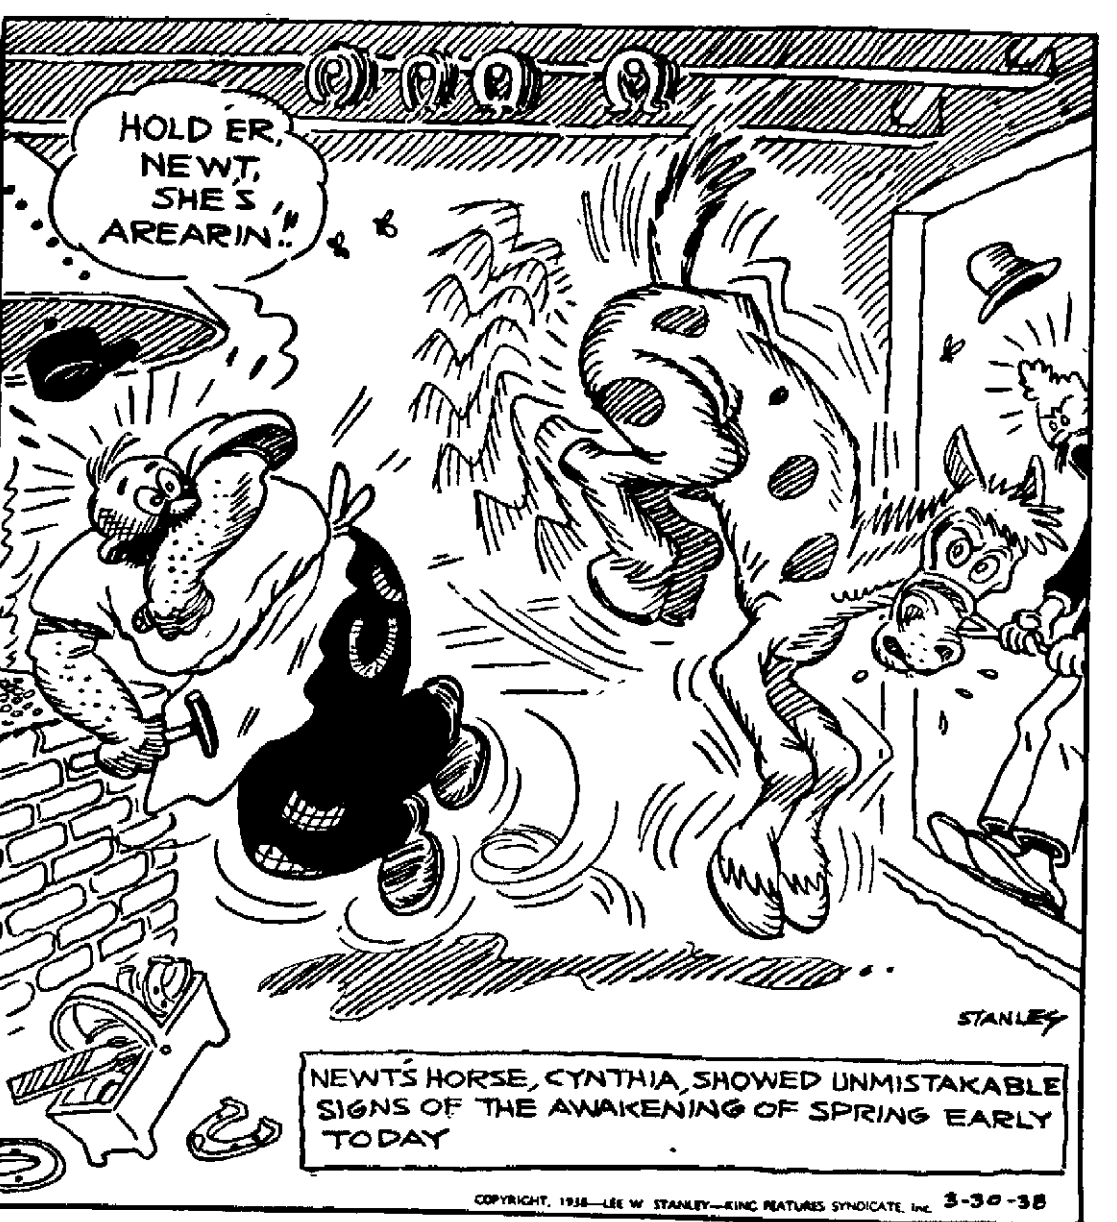

A large orchestra under the direction of Laurence Todd gave a good musical background to the performance last night, the final one for the season.

Preceding the Dupont executive, C. L. Vanderau, manager of manufacturing, spoke on "Accident Prevention" and cited facts and figures to show the progress being made in the local works. The meeting, held in the display room, was under the direction of L. S. Houk, works engineer.

Approximately 125 foremen attended the session which was preceded by a dinner in the cafeteria.

HEARS OLD SUIT

Appeals Court Gets Arguments in Case Against County.

A $15,000 damage suit against the Richland county commissioners, which has been pending in courts since 1933, was argued again yesterday by four Mansfield attorneys before the Fifth district court of appeals at Delaware.

The case resulted from injuries suffered by the late Mrs. Elizabeth Olds of near Lexington in an automobile accident five years ago, and was carried to the supreme court last year.

The state court ordered a new trial after the Richland county court rejected Mrs. Olds' petition. The plaintiff died after the action was started and the suit has since been carried on by her husband, Harry.

Yesterday's hearing, continued from a recent appeals court session here, was on the commissioners' appeal from a $1,500 verdict returned against them by a jury in common pleas court last fall.

Arguments for the county were presented by Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott and Atty. J. V. Will. Olds' attorneys were H. M. Rust and Lewis Brucker.

Snow Plows Reach 25 Motorists In Colorado Drifts

DURANGO, Colo.—(AP)—Twenty-five motorists, rescued by a rotary snow plow from 20-foot snowdrifts which trapped them for 36 hours on Wolf Creek Pass, rested safely today but a man who started on foot across the pass had not been heard from.

The missing man, George Willis of Buckeye, Ariz., started eastward over the pass yesterday while a two-day blizzard continued in full force.

Nourished by food carried to them on skis by state highway patrolmen, and warmed by campfires and automobile heaters, the motorists suffered only from weariness.

During the height of the storm, 49 inches of snow fell within 12 hours on Wolf Creek Pass.

Cumbres Pass, on the New Mexico boundary, was blocked, halting service on the Denver & Rio Grande western's narrow gauge line across the Continental Divide.

50 CLUBBED

Policeman, Pickets Injured In Detroit Strike Clash.

DETROIT.—(AP)—One policeman was injured and fifty United Automobile Workers pickets clubbed today in a battle at the strike-bound Federal Screw Works.

Patrolman Chester Andrews was sent to the hospital with a gash over his left eye, where a hurled stone had struck him.

An escort of 40 police were conveying 50 non-striking workers to their jobs at 7 a. m., when the battle started.

The more than 600 pickets massed at the plant, according to a police estimate, armed with clubs and stones surged forward. Stones were hurled and police and strikers clubbed each other.

150 policemen, stationed near the plant, joined the battle.

Jail Population Hits 21, Lowest Figure In Weeks

Population of the Richland county jail dropped to 21 today, the lowest figure in recent weeks, with the transfer of two prisoners to the Mansfield reformatory and another to the Ohio penitentiary.

Paul Rhodes, 18, Shelby, and Alvin Guthrie, 21, of Blooming-grove township, sentenced four days ago by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston for chicken stealing, were taken to the reformatory to begin one to 15 year terms.

Jesse Snyder, 42, of Shuloh, was taken to Columbus yesterday by Sheriff E. P. Long to serve a one to seven year sentence for grand larceny Snyder, the father of seven children, pleaded guilty before Judge Huston to the theft of harness valued at $45 from a farm near Shuloh.

With the release of Mrs. Anna Bemiller of Porrysville on probation, the jail was without a woman prisoner for a few hours yesterday. It received a new feminine inmate, however, from municipal court when Miss Patricia Numemaker, 19, of Butler, Pa., was bound to the county grand jury under $2,000 bond on a charge of forgery.

The storm continued almost unabated today.

FRANCO MAN OF STEEL WITH A VELVETY SMILE

Modest and Shy, Insurgents' Leader Began Army Record When Youth of 15.

By DE WITT MACKENZIE

NEW YORK.—"What is the background of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the Spanish insurgent leader?" writes a reader.

"I know what he has done in the civil war, and am familiar with the mixture of praise and opprobrium which is being heaped upon him. But what is his history prior to the revolution?"

That is a legitimate question, especially in view of the fact that General Franco will be chief of the Spanish government—he dislikes the term "dictator"—if the insurgents win.

The reason so little is known about Franco is because he has come into international prominence only since the revolt began. His native land, however, has been well acquainted with him for many years.

If you ran into the 45-year-old general, say on an ocean cruise, and didn't know who he was, you would note an engaging personality, but would scarcely log him at first glimpse as an insurgent chieftain. For he is so extremely modest that he is almost shy. Rarely does he employ the egotistical "I."

It is only after some acquaintance that one begins to sense beneath Franco's calm reserve another quality. His lieutenants sum it up when they say he is man of steel with a velvety smile.

Short, Medium Build.

In personal appearance the general is rather short of stature and of medium build. He is straight and square-shouldered, as befits the professional soldier.

He is dark, with an oval face, a broad forehead and an aquiline nose. The grey is beginning to touch his black hair. He wears a small moustache.

Franco is a natural-born soldier and even as a young officer was credited with being adept in the business of war.

He is first, last and always a soldier, and professes to have no liking for politics. As a matter of fact, he never engaged in political activities until he established his present provisional government.

"My place is with the army as a soldier, not a politician," he says. The general has had a long military record which in a nut-shell is this—A cadet at 14—commander of the famous Foreign Legion at 21—a red-shirted brigadier general when only 34, thus being the youngest of staff of the Spanish army at 43—removed by the popular front government in 1936 and sent to the Canary Islands as commander in that isolated spot—flew from the Canaries to Tetuan to command the uprising in July of that year.

Promoted by Merit.

All Franco's numerous and rapid promotions are said to have come through the merits of war. Prior to the present revolt he had been through 150 engagements, once being gravely wounded. Most of his fighting was done against the natives in Morocco.

Franco long has been the idol of the army. His men refer to him as "Caudillo" (the "Chief"). Franco's habits are those of the dyed-in-the-wool army officer. He is disciplined to early hours and the rigors of garrison life. His social diversions are few, and he dislikes ceremonies. He has many friends but they are mostly army men. He has no special hobbies not connected with army life.

The generalissimo reads extensively but mostly on military subjects.

He keeps himself fit for his strenuous job. One way is by being abstemious in eating, drinking and smoking.

Franco has a young and attractive wife and a nine year old daughter. Both have the same very Spanish name—Carmen.

This Beauty Secret Comes From a Doctor

Most women don't need beauty parlors. Your own doctor will tell you that sal-low complexions and pimply skins are rarely matters for cosmetics. Because most skin blemishes are aggravated by cosmetics.

Dr. E. M. Edwards, during his years of practice, treated hundreds of women for constipation and frequently noted remarkable improvement in their appearance. He used a purely vegetable compound—Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This laxative is gentle, yet peculiarly effective because it increases the bile flow without shocking the intestinal system. SARASOTA, Fla.—(AP)—Coroner Franklin Redd, Jr., convened an inquest today to determine how Eugene Fleck, circus high-wire performer was shot to death.

Fleck, member of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey troupe, was found with a fatal bullet wound in his head. A pistol lay at his feet.

URGES BOARD TO GUIDE PARKS

Noted Landscape Authority Says Commission Free of Politics Needed.

treble for land to add to the park system."

He then recommended the creation of a park commission for the city, with absolute control over the public parks, as the first step towards future development.

"Parks and politics don't mix," he stated. "You can't have a real park system where the park personnel is changed with every change in the administration. The finest parks in the country are under the supervision of a parks commission." He cited as an example the city of Cincinnati which he said has some of the most beautiful parks in the nation, and which has had the commission form of administration for 25 years.

"This example of fine parks can't be done by persons who are appointed by the administration today knowing that they might be gone in two years," he added. He recommended a three-man board as sufficient number to administer the parks of Mansfield.

Taylor pointed out that the old conception was to make the parks only beauty spots without any provisions for recreation, but that changes in the last decade had brought about a move to provide for practical recreation centers and still conserve their beauty.

"A community with park area and recreational facilities, holding the desire to develop additional park areas in the city is going to be successful," Taylor said.

"I have never seen the city with too many parks or too many recreational centers, nor have I seen the city that wanted to sell or dispose of any of its park lands."

Taylor's talk followed a two-hour tour of Mansfield's parks earlier in the day. Accompanied by Mayor Claude M. Hunter and Williams, the landscape architect visited the city's seven parks and offered numerous suggestions for beautifying and improving them.

He recommended the cleaning up of the parks and said that work should be done at once on muddy hillsides to eliminate any further erosion which has dug deeply into the grassy slopes.

He advocated stone bridges in place of the concrete arches with their iron rails, and suggested the removal of the drive around North Lake. The seeding of the plat around the lake with grass and laying out walks would tend to beautify the spot more than anything else, Taylor asserted.

Following Taylor's talk last night, trophies were awarded to the card winners in three classes by Mayor Hunter. The rotating W. C. "Bill" Mead trophy, emblematic of the city park card championship was presented to Liberty park. Other trophies were presented to Johns, Prospect and North Lake parks.

Roy W. Vaughn, president of the parks association served as toastmaster at the meeting.

—Advice—
Called 'Fool'
For Waiting
For Man

By VIRGINIA LEE
IN STORIES girls love once. When something happens to break up their romance they never marry and become sweet, pathetic old souls, always ready to tell their sad story to young girls who are in love.

In life it is sometimes so, I suppose. At least one hears of folk who had an early romance and never married.

But it is much more usual for those who have been wounded by Dan Cupid's arrows to suffer a while, and then take unto themselves new loves and go gallantly through life, with only an occasional thought of the former loved one, and sometimes in reminiscent mood wonder what life would have been if the affair had ended in marriage.

To my mind this is much more practical and sensible. Even the greatest of tragedies grow a little dim with time and with our knowledge of the workings of the human mind, we are apt to see that a person who allows his life to be "ruined" by any one circumstance, is "putting on an act"—in other words, attaching far too much importance to that one occurrence in order to inflate his own ego, make himself feel important and so appear to others.

That is an awful come-down from the sad, sweet martyr of other days, but it is nearer the truth. Today we suffer for a time and then, with chin up, eyes forward, we march along, take the next best if the best is denied us, and get a good deal out of life.

A BLUE-EYED AND BROKENHEARTED FOOL (please don't use such a long name again!) is the girl in this case. She can't forget a boy with whom she went for a while. She knows he isn't worthy of her affections, but she won't go out with others, and refuses all dates. Her girl friends call her a "fool" for waiting for this boy, and she wants to know if I, too, think her foolish.

If the fellow isn't worth while, my dear, I don't see any sense in waiting for him and giving up all social life. If he is and you think there is any possibility of his coming back, why, wait a while and see.

Don't wait too long, however. If he does not soon show signs of returning, force yourself to go out with other boys and have a good time—or as good as you can manage. Let yourself get to know some other chap, and I bet you will find he is just as nice and more satisfactory as a friend than this one.

I hope I have answered your letter, but it was a bit ambiguous and contradictory, saying in the first place that you and your girl pal were not having as much fun as other girls because you had higher moral standards, and then telling of your girl friend's boy friend and this boy you care about. With some types of boys it is unwise to admit that you care, but not with the regular fellow.

Give Feet Pedicure For Comfort

—Beauty—
By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)
DRESS UP your tootsies, just as you slick up your face and hands. Feet should be smartly polished and well cared for nowadays. A pale ragged toenail peeping out of your open sandals is a sad and shameful thing. Treat yourself to a pedicure, and your feet will look as good as they feel.

Here's a step-by-step routine that takes an hour, but after it your feet will be something to be proud of.

First bathe your feet thoroughly with warm water and soap. Immerse your feet, first the right, then your left, in a bowl of water, and scrub your nails and cuticle with a brush. Don't let them stay in the water long enough to soften your nails. Then dry them thoroughly.

Moisten absorbent cotton with witch hazel, or eau de cologne, and wipe your feet and ankles.

Remove any old polish that is still on the nails with your regular polish remover.

Next file your nails with the rough side of an emery board and bevel them with the smooth side. Toenails should be filed straight across, or only slightly rounded, and they should be just long enough to protect your toe from pressure. Be careful not to file them down at the corners, as this may cause ingrowing toenails. Then give your nails a good buffing.

Next remove your cuticle with a cotton-tipped orange stick dipped in one of the oily cuticle removers. Work the stick around the edge of the nail gently. This will soften and loosen the dead, lifeless cuticle overlapping the nail. Clean under your nail tip in the same way. If your cuticle is particularly stubborn, place a bit of cotton moistened with the remover over the nail, and allow it to remain for several minutes. Wipe the loosened cuticle away with a towel.

Next Step Scrubbing.
Now scrub your toes thoroughly again and apply your nail white under the free edge of your nail. In drying with a towel the last bits of loosened cuticle will come off. Go over all ten nails again with the remover to prepare them for the polish.

Place pieces of cotton between your toes to separate them and protect the polish until it dries. Drain the brush at the edge of the bottle so it will not have too much polish on it. Polish is usually worn over the entire toenail, although you can leave the half-moon and tip free if you wish. Use the tip of the orange stick to remove any polish that runs into the creases of the sides of the nail. The deeper shades are popular for beach and evening, even if a lighter shade is used on your fingernails. But be sure to have the colors harmonize.

Finish by massaging your toes with a hand cream or olive oil. Massage your entire foot and ankle for several minutes, and put particular emphasis on the balls of your feet. Each toe and the whole foot should be rotated several times to limber and relax the muscles.

With your feet looking so sophisticated you'll feel like a regular glamor girl.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, March 31.
ACCORDING TO the lunar transits for this day, employment, work, fidelity and long service may culminate in particular rewards from superiors, employers and elders. The latter may figure in the affairs, possibly offering important propositions as tokens of preference or confidence. It would be well to accept these, although it may mean a complete turning over or re-organization of the life and its interests.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of great significance in molding the future. Rewards for faithful service in employment may be expected, although they may call for a complete re-orientation or re-organization of the life and its affairs or environs. Such indications of faith, preference and esteem from elders and superiors may be accepted with confidence.

A child born on this day may have a very serious, deep, studious and self-centered nature. Its talents may make it conspicuous to employers, superiors or elders, all of whom figure significantly in its successful career.

To fry bacon, cut long strips in halves, place in frying pan while cold, set over fire and turn constantly until crisp.

"OKAY!" THE taxi driver answered, with the free masonry of his craft, to my suddenly announced change of plan, and Mary slipped her hand along the seat and clamped it firmly upon my knee.

"You know what killed the well-known cat," she murmured. "I know my temperature is 107 this second."

"It will have to stay there," I murmured imperturbably, "until we reach the tea room. If we can find a table sufficiently secluded, I will tell you all about this."

"It's generally crowded," she murmured despondently. "But not at this hour," I pointed out.

"That's true," she agreed, brightening. "It's not time for the regular tea hour yet, although it's near enough to it so those very English waiters won't swoon at the thought of anyone coming for tea at an unreasonable hour. But you'll see the fractional lifted eyelashes which will betray their real opinion of us."

Mary Is Informed.

But her caustic little prophecy did not come true. Whatever the private opinion of the waiters may have been, their manner and servile was of that degree of excellence for which they bear so well deserved a reputation, and we secured a table so well adapted for confidential conversation that I was able to begin my explanation of my mysterious actions as soon as the waiter had taken our order.

She listened without comment to my account of the psychic little intuition which had made me sure watching—possibly sinister—eyes were upon us, and of the confirming actions of the man seated in the taxi in front of the store. Only her widening eyes betrayed her excitement. When I finished telling her of his following us, and of my reason for not trying to elude him, she nodded sapiently.

"One hundred per cent correct as per usual," she commented. Then she stiffened ever so slightly.

"Don't look yet!" she said softly, affecting a study of the menu. "But a man has just come in the side door who answers the description of the bird you saw. There's a mirror arrangement at

THIS AND THAT: Laurel and Hardy, who have quarreled so many times, are said to be burning again over the script for their personal appearance tour, Hardy claiming that Laurel wants too juicy a part written in for his new bride, the Russian entertainer, Illiana. . . . George Jessel is said also to want Illiana for his personal appearance tour. . . . Fred Astaire burns too, when he is reminded that he was chosen one of the ten best dressed men in Hollywood. "Makes a fellow feel like a stuffed duck," he told a reporter. . . . Arleen Whelan is one of the youngsters who has had the breaks and is slated for stardom. Her pappy, an electrician, put up the flood lights that will be turned on his daughter's name on a billboard near the film capital. . . .

Reckless Foursome.

When Japanese troops swept over Shanghai, the International Settlement, made up of foreigners from every nation in the world, stood in the way, and became the center of world speculation and suspense. The people who lived there had a "here today—gone tomorrow" sort of feeling and in many cases made them reckless and impetuous to danger. In "International Settlement," which "20th Century-Fox" had made into a drama, four persons are involved; a beautiful woman whose creed was to live dangerously; a lovely American tourist caught in the jam; a news reel cameraman, and an American flying instructor, Dolores Del Rio, June Lang, Dick Baldwin and George Sanders are the foursome. The picture is presented at the Majestic along with "Tarzan Escapes".

Hollywood Irony.

It is ironical, but typical of the movies that Robert Montgomery, distinguished for playboy roles, and for men without conscience or integrity, is in reality one of the most serious minded men in Hollywood and has dared more for the under dog than any other player, with the possible exception of James Cagney. Montgomery has fought the battles of the extra players many times, although he himself is one of the higher bracket celebrities. His latest picture, "Live, Learn and Love," shows him an artist who couldn't stand success. Opposite him is Rosalind Russell, and in an important comedy role is Robert Benchley. The picture is current at the Ritz, with "Borneo" as a second feature.

Story of Six Girls.

A page from Broadway history is "Walking Down Broadway," the Ohio theater offering for the last half of the week. The story goes behind the glitter of footlights to follow the careers of six show girls. Claire Trevor is the girl who never lost her head until she lost the man she loved; Phyllis Brooks could resist anything—but temptation; Leah Ray liked excitement; Dixie Dunbar thought life began and ended with a sugar daddy; Lynn Bari dreamed of her name in lights; and Jayne Regan was the only girl who held onto her dreams. The men who made or broke their careers are Michael Whalen, Thomas Beck, Douglas Fowley, Walter Woolf King, Jed Prouty, and Robert Kellard.

UNENDING VARIETY
DUPLICATE games certainly emphasize the unending variety in the way that the cards can be played. One declarer may botch the play. Another chooses a well planned way and attains success. Still another may use the same method but be thwarted by keen defense. It is an education in human nature to follow some deals from table to table.

At three tables in a recent duplicate 4-Spades was the final contract of the North-South pairs.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

Three different forms of play resulted.

At table one, the heart 4 was led and won with the K, and a trump lead won with the 8. The diamond 2 was lead to East's K, and the heart return won with the A. Then the diamond Q was cashed. The spade 6 was led and West covered with the J, forcing the Q and beating South out of an entry to dummy, so the contract was set two.

At the second table, the play proceeded the same up to the sixth trick, where West played low and the spade 9 was allowed to win. The diamond 6 was ruffed with the spade K and followed by a spade to the Q. On the diamond A, a heart was discarded and on the 9 a club was tossed. The heart 6 was ruffed and the last two tricks given up, so that game was made.

The declarer at the third table at the seventh trick made

Lutheran, Baptist Quintets End Season In Tie.

Park Avenue Baptist and First Lutheran romped across the finish line neck-to-neck last night in the hectic Church Class B league race. The clubs wound up the regular season at the Y. M. C. A. with victories to finish in a tie for the championship. A playoff will be necessary to determine the title.

The Baptist turned in the best performance on the program. The co-leaders, led by Bill Condon, who collected 56 points, smothered the last-place B'Nai Jacob outfit, 95 to 9, for a new season scoring record. The cellar occupants had only four men on the floor.

Baptist blanked the losers in the first two stanzas while tallying 48 points to take a lead that was never threatened. Condon's sparkling total set a new individual scoring record. Cline was the only B'Nai Jacob man to collect more than one basket.

While the Baptist were romping, First Lutheran ran into a snag. The club had to rally in an overtime period to break a 24-all tie and edge St. John's, 30 to 26. St. John's led, 9 to 5, in the opening period, the Lutherans rallied to knot the score at 13-all at half-time. The Lutherans went ahead, 20 to 17, going into the final frame, but were unable to hold the advantage.

Christian Wins.

In the other titles, First Christian defeated First Presbyterian, 36 to 21, Mayflower beat First M. E., 24 to 19, and Central M. E. edged South Main, 25 to 24.

Mansfield Tire Team Rolls 2949 Total With Aid of Big Handicap In Opening.

ALTHOUGH P. H. Ober, vice president of the Mansfield Tire & Rubber company, did not set a very good example for the employees entered in the City bowling tournament, the plant keglers dominated the scoring in the first shift of the pin classic at the Meder alleys last night.

Ober, once one of the outstanding bowlers in the city, threw the first ball in the revival of the City tournament . . . into the gutter.

Martin Leads Leaders.

Aided by a 654-pin handicap, the Breaker assembly squad of the company rolled out a 2949 total to gain the five-man lead in the first City tournament ever held at the present site of the alleys.

John Martin contributed a 587 total to lead the assembly team into first place.

The company's Air Bags rolled into second place with a 2893 total, and the mill room gained third place with a 2844, Pete Grohol shooting a 544.

The first team to break the domination of the Mansfield Tire representatives were the Optimists, who pounded out a 2840 total to reach fourth place.

Gains Fifth Place.

Fifth place is held by the Empire Steel company's Main office club, which registered a 2817.

The tournament will be resumed next Tuesday night with five-man, singles and doubles shifts.

Indians Find Another Star In Humphries

Rookie Wins Place on Staff In Game With Phils.

BILOXI, Miss.—(UP)—The Cleveland Indians today appeared to have developed another rookie pitching star to share the spotlight with Bob Feller. The newcomer who has won a place on the Tribe's staff and may gain the right to take his regular turn on the mound is Johnny Humphries.

Humphries split honors with the veteran Mel Harder here yesterday as Cleveland took a 2 to 1 decision from the Philadelphia Phillies.

Harder, who appears in for one of his best years, worked the first five innings and gave up only two hits. The first man to face him, Heinie Mueller, singled, and then Harder retired the next nine men in order.

Permits Two Hits.

Humphries pitched the last four innings and gave up only two more hits. The youngster was in trouble on two occasions, but coolly hurled his way out of the spots.

The only Philly run came off his delivery in the eighth inning.

The Indian batsmen continued to be in a slump and made only four hits. Both of Cleveland's runs came in the third inning.

In an effort to give the Indians more punch, Manager Oscar Vitt benched Roy Weatherly and sent Bill Sodd to the outfield in his place.

Ken Keltner, the rookie third baseman, continued to sparkle both at field and at bat. He handled four chances with ease and secured two of the Tribe's hits. His single in the third drove in both runs.

Paul Carbetta, N. C. O. flyweight champion, is the only Mansfielder to reach the finals of the annual A. A. U. amateur boxing tournament at Marion.

The youthful Friendly House leather pusher advanced last night at Marion by winning on a technical knockout over Kid Schinler of Bucyrus in the first round.

"Kid" Carmel, the only other Mansfield boy to reach the semifinals, dropped out of the running last night when he lost a decision to Jack Hosteller of Marion. Mike Wentz and John Villella acted as second for the youths.

CHICAGO—(UP)—The Erie, Pa., Isaac Baker bowlers are still out in front of the American Bowling Congress by a good margin and some of the best teams in the business shot at their mark last night.

But none of them hit the mark, or even came close, as the expected fireworks fizzled. Highly-touted clubs such as the Monarch Bays and Minerva of Chicago didn't come within 70 points of the Baker's 3087 figure. The Minerva's counted 2950. Failure of the Kuntzmann-Esser team of Milwaukee to rate higher than a tie for fifth with 3020 flat last night was due more to unlucky pin action than any other factor.

Even Waite Hoyt Hits Home Run

LAKELAND, Fla.—(INS)—Detroit Tigers' Manager Mickey Cochrane today was a gloomy man. Still dazed after the stunning 15-2 defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers handed his team yesterday, Black Mike was hard put to figure a way to stop the Washington Senators, whom they have beaten twice to date, this afternoon. Brooklyn batsmen were unmerciful in slugging the offerings of Vernon Kennedy, prized Newcomer and Roxie Lawson, Tiger star. Even Waite Hoyt, veteran moundman hit a homer, his first in 23 years of baseball.

Mickey Can't Quit

MICKEY COCHRANE . . . he holds to a thin chance.

By DILLON GRAHAM, Associated Press Sports Writer.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Somewhere I once read a story of a spirited old fire-horse who lost his stall in the engine-house because the gasoline trucks came along.

The story stuck with me—the description of that old steed, veteran of many a dashing run to a blaze, as he was led away, protesting, his head turned toward his old base, knowing it was the end but somehow hoping he might be brought back.

The story flashed back into my mind in Lakeland the other day as I watched a ball-player drill. There was sweat on his brow and arms. His hands were dirty with the Florida sand and there were smudges on his dark face. He'd been romping around in the infield practice and he hadn't had enough.

He was off alone, standing up 15 feet from a fence and banging a baseball against it, scooping up the return and firing again at the boards. He was throwing the ball hard, not as a happy or enthusiastic athlete but as one fired with determination. Gosh, every time he'd snag that ball and bang it back you could almost hear him saying: "I will! I will! I will!" But he won't.

He knows as well as you or I do that his playing days ended that summer afternoon in Yankee Stadium last year when a fast ball struck him high on the temple. But he won't believe it. Fiery Mickey can't let go of the game that has been his life for years.

Mickey's Determined to Be Ready.

HE IS the hardest worker in the Detroit camp. He scoops 'em up around second base in infield drills and he catches in batting practice. He is determined to be ready. He wants to prove to himself and to President Walter O. Briggs that he can play again.

Sometime ago he formally announced his retirement as an active player. But down deep he didn't mean it. That is, he still had hopes he would play. That's why he is working so strenuously. He is holding tight to the thin possibility that Briggs will let him play. But he won't. Mickey Cochrane definitely is through as a player.

Even on the bench he will be the biggest question-mark on the Detroit club. The Tigers can't win without Mickey around. And there's doubt as to whether his nervous temperament will permit him to manage from the dugout without endangering his health.

He Does a Lot of Wishful Thinking.

JUST as he hangs desperately to the hope that he may play, so does he nurse the belief (and wish) that Schoolboy Rowe will again be a crack pitcher, that the Tigers will be a fine ball club and that they will rush past the Yankees to win the American league pennant.

But few persons share his opinion. Schoolboy is looser than a year ago. He looks nervous. Rowe no longer is a pessimist. He is always giving himself a pep talk—smiling outwardly—trying to forget the pain that still jabs his arm after a pitching workout and telling himself that soon it will wear itself out and the flipper will be strong again. But Schoolboy probably will never be a great pitcher again.

And there's not enough Tiger punch to fret the Yankees. There's Charley Gehring, Rudy York and Hank Greenberg, and one 300 hitter in the outfield, Pete Fox. There's no power on the left side of the infield. Marv Owen is gone and the rookie infielders—Mark Christman, Frank Croucher and Don Ross—can't hit.

Jake Wade and Cletus Poffenberger may win more games than they did last year but Vernon Kennedy and Roxie Lawson probably won't. Elden Auker and Tommy Bridges are getting no younger and even Mickey will be surprised if the rookie flingers show much. Worry strikes hard into a nervous man. And Cochrane, as great a guy as ever stepped onto a diamond, will have many worries this year.

J. A. C. to Award Sweaters to Champs

SIMON-PURE mitt slingers to compete in the amateur boxing tournament to be sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce at the Y. M. C. A. this month will have a classy assortment of prizes to spur them on to victory.

The J. A. C. will depart from the custom of presenting metal awards. R. C. Walters, a member of the publicity committee, announced today.

Sweaters will be presented to the champions of the eight divisions, he stated. The monogram of the organization will appear on the coat-style sweaters.

Runners-up in the eight divisions will receive silver glove charms suitable for watch chains.

Sees Record Entry.

Plans for the three-night tournament are gradually being completed, Walters said. Out-of-town fighters have shown considerable interest in the promotion, and the number of contestants should set a new record for entries in a tournament for the immediate vicinity, he stated.

The tournament dates are April 20, 21 and 26, with the finals scheduled on the latter night.

A ticket campaign will be inaugurated by the organization next week.

PLAIN DEALERS REGISTER 21ST CAGE TRIUMPH

The Plain Dealers chalked up their 21st victory in 23 games last night at the Y. M. C. A. by defeating the Aces, 39 to 29. The winners spurred to take a 10 to 1 lead in the opening frame and were never headed. Augustine was high-point man with 16 points.

New York School Asks to Compete In Track Classic

It may be necessary to throw open the 12th renewal of the Mansfield Relays, set for April 23, to another state to accommodate a school, Harry Mehock, director of the popular interscholastic track and field meet, announced today.

Permission to compete in the schoolboy classic was asked in a letter received today by Mehock from athletic authorities of Silver Creek, N. Y., high school.

The meet is sanctioned only for schools in Ohio, Michigan, West Virginia, Kentucky and Pennsylvania, but Mehock stated today that he would seek approval of the addition of New York to the sanction from the National High School athletic association to permit the entry of Silver Creek.

Perform for Sports.

The Luncheoners have Tom Farrell, Gene Brandon, Earl Herrick, Adam Brandt, Mike Wentz, John and Bob Schuster and George Hummel of the City Class A.

Adams and Eugene Shumaker, former Galion high players. Benny's Hi Notes of the Friendly House Senior league may be contenders. On the club are Richard Huffman and Earl Reichart, individual scoring leader in the Church Class A league.

Loom as "Dark Horses."

The Shelmur Products of Mt. Vernon and Lakewood Merchants are the "dark horses" of the tourney. The Lakewood club sports an impressive record of 25 victories in 29 games.

Not much is known about the other entries, Galion Barbers, Galion Quality Coals, Earl's Dairy and Ralph's Snappy Service of Marion.

Among the Class B threats are the Lexington Independents, Rex Billards, Friendly House Senior league champions, and Mansfield Queen Bees.

Rule With Independents.

The Independents have Harry France, Robert Them, Harry Chalgant, Richard Rule and Morton Huguenard of Lexington high school. Rule was picked as a guard on the county tournament all-star team.

Kenny and Willard Lockhart of Madison fame, Nick Zeigler, Bob Bongantz and Jim Elliott, members of last year's crack Ontario high quintet, will perform for the Billiards.

Draft Tax Bill to Free Billions In Frozen Capital

SENATE SEEKS HOLDING FIRM LIQUIDATIONS

Group Approves Amendment to Make Tax Payment Easier, Stimulate Dissolution.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—The senate finance committee designed a new tax law today to provide billions in frozen capital. Members approved and wrote into final form an amendment to encourage the liquidation of personal holding companies.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the committee estimated that between $2,000,000,000 and $4,000,000,000 is locked up in such companies.

If the companies are encouraged to liquidate, he said, this money would flow into the channels of business and trade, giving new support to the sagging economic structure.

Broadens Installments.
Under the proposed amendment to the house-approved revenue bill, stockholders could pay in four annual installments the capital gains levy on gains realized from corporation liquidations. At present, the taxes must be paid in three installments.

Harrison said the proposed change would make tax payment easier and would stimulate liquidation. Although the amendment would apply to all corporation liquidations, he said it would affect personal holding companies chiefly.

Previously, the committee has sought to encourage business by eliminating the undistributed profits tax and overhauling the capital gains tax included in the house bill.

Some informed persons said the committee would consider eliminating capital gains taxes on gains realized by stockholders from utility holding company liquidations.

At present, they said, the capital gains levies tend to discourage liquidations.

Watson Blames State In Relief Situation

Up and Down THE STREET

Elaine Marlow, 14, of 84 Poplar street, felt pretty badly yesterday when her name didn't appear as one of the first prize winners in the Junior Music club contests that were held at Dayton over the week-end. Her name was inadvertently omitted by the delegate who reported the winners. Elaine not only carried off first prize when she appeared as piano accompanist for a violin quartet, but she proved a good "trouser" by pinch-hitting at the last minute. A piano teacher was to have played for the quartet. Only the day before the contests it was learned that the accompanist must be in the same age group, and Elaine was pressed into service about 24 hours before competing.

Central Park, usually one of the first spots in Mansfield to show evidence of spring, was colored today by blossoming flowers along the west side of the park. The park also has undergone a "face-lifting" with fresh earth spread over the damaged turf and added to the flower beds in preparation for spring.

A small mouse played to a large and appreciative audience early last evening in the big window of a Main street store, where candy Easter eggs are displayed. The little fellow paid no attention to the gathering crowd as he worked like a Trojan to puncture the hard outer surface of the egg. That accomplished, he went at it in earnest, his head and half of his small body disappearing into the egg as he ate greedily at the soft interior. The crowd attracted police who called the manager of the store. And in a little while the mouse's fun was ended.

Six typing and shorthand students at Senior high school got a taste of court reporting under fire today during the William B. Martin trial at the courthouse. Provided with their own table right in the midst of the court proceedings, the girls were taking down testimony as if they were accustomed to the cross-questioning of the lawyers. An occasional troubled glance at each other, however, indicated they wished witnesses talked louder or slower.

Fair Enough

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—I would like to hope that the next war can be prevented by collective security or by some miraculous appeal to the better nature of Adolf Hitler, but everything is against such belief.

The Germans are bulging with arrogance, and either the British or the French, though they have been backed around the schoolyard several times, to their great humiliation, eventually will get their gumption up and let one fly.

It is considered jingoistic to speak of the German arrogance but, after all, it is one of the most aggravating factors in these days of pre-war bickering, just as it was in the years leading up to 1914, and it cannot be ignored out of existence. Nations, like individuals, hate one another as much for traits which they find offensive as for definite impositions.

It may be indicative, too, to say that the British and French have been taking insults and ignoring digs in the ribs only because they were short of confidence. But their joint meekness, which passes for peace-loving patience, and the military shortwindedness of the British, are no mere coincidence. Who ever heard of the British or French taking such lip as they have taken from Mussolini and Hitler these last few years?

DAYS OF SOLDIERS' WAR ARE OVER

The days of the soldiers' war are over. Now it is war against women and children by bomb and starvation, and the dictators both have rallied on the fear of the British and French that they wouldn't be able to protect their own. Give the British a little more time, though, and they will fight. They may be ready to chance it now.

Collective security would have to include Russia and it would have to be backed by collective military might. Otherwise, what would prevent Hitler and Mussolini from walking out and taking anything which the collective nations refused to sell them and taking their countries, too, or as much territory as they would deem necessary to pay for.

HOUSING CLINIC SET FOR FRIDAY

Representative of Federal Housing Authority Speaks at C. of C. Meeting.

L. A. Bonstiel of Washington, D. C., a representative of the Federal Housing Authority, will be the speaker at a housing clinic arranged by the Chamber of Commerce for Friday at 7:30 p. m. at the C. of C. assembly rooms.

The meeting will be conducted in connection with a proposed slum clearance project being considered by city and county officials.

Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the chamber, said the meeting was open to all persons interested in the project, especially businessmen, architects, real estate dealers and engineers.

Bonstiel will explain the slum clearance program as conducted by the Federal Housing Authority and will answer questions relative to provisions in the housing act.

In the meantime however, city and county officials have arranged for a trip to Toledo tomorrow to look over a slum clearance project now under construction in that city.

They will interest themselves particularly in the financing of the project as the sponsors share is 10 per cent of the total cost of the project.

Preliminary plans call for an appropriation of $100 to start a survey before setting up a Metropolitan Housing Authority here to request a share of the $65,000,000 allocated to Ohio for slum clearance.

'GOLD LEAF' ROD LEADS WAY TO MISSING RADIUM WORTH $2,000

(By United Press)
CINCINNATI—The persistence of Dr. Ysay Balinkin, University of Cincinnati physicist, and the "magic" of a "divining rod" today restored $2,000 worth of radium to the laboratories of General Hospital.

The precious element disappeared late Monday in a container no larger than a lump of sugar. Hospital attaches had no clues.

One doctor knew the man qualified and equipped to make the search. Near midnight, he routed Dr. Balinkin from bed.

The apparatus, known to any schoolboy physicist, consisted of a rod coated with "gold leaf." In the presence of electrical charges, the leaves stand erect. In the presence of radium, they collapse.

Dr. Balinkin first provided the "rod" around the patient's bed, her clothing, her belongings, her room. The leaves did not tremble.

Unperturbed, the physicist asked: "What has been removed from the room recently? Where was it taken?"

Henry Hooper, hospital superintendent, led Balinkin and the procession down the corridors. The "detective-physicist" poked the divining rod into corners and around likely looking objects. But the leaves held stiff.

Dr. Balinkin asked for the ward's garbage. He was directed to the kitchen. There, over a garbage can, the leaves collapsed.

"The radium is in there," Dr. Balinkin announced. A doctor thrust a spoon in the waste. There lay the radium.

TELLS MINERS OHIO FAILS TO DO ITS SHARE

WPA Puts $14,000,000 Each Month Into State, Director Informs Delegation.

(By United Press)
COLUMBUS—The state government was charged today by Dr. Carl Watson, state WPA director, with part of the blame for a serious relief situation which prompts a delegation of 40 miners from five eastern Ohio counties to appeal to him for more WPA work for the unemployed.

Accompanied by county, municipal and township officials, miners from Athens, Hocking, Perry, Morgan and Muskingum counties asked for broader distribution of WPA work. In the case of Hocking county two members of the delegation charged county officials with discrimination.

Dr. Watson informed the group that the WPA problem was essentially local and suggested the condition might be remedied by speedier certification of applicants for WPA employment. An investigator has been detailed to Hocking county, he disclosed.

Points Out 'Danger.'
He noted, however, that there was a limit to work that can be provided, emphasizing the danger of a "stranded population" being left in the mining districts by changing industrial conditions.

He said the WPA is "putting $14,000,000 a month into Ohio," and said he thought the state has not done its share in dealing with the relief problem as a whole.

"I do think the state has a duty to perform," he said. "I wish these men here would convey that message where it belongs. I am putting $14,000,000 a month into Ohio right now and what the state is doing looks pretty insignificant, doesn't it?"

Gov. Martin L. Davey has said he would not recall the legislature to deal with the relief problem until officials of the larger cities have agreed on a program to supplement the $12,000,000 plan established several months ago.

T. J. Price, Midvale, special representative for district No. 6, United Mine Workers, as spokesman for the delegation said approximately 4,000 miners in the five counties are now unemployed.

Italy to Wage War If Necessary, Duce Says

'We Are Preparing Men and Means for War of Quick Decision,' Mussolini Tells Senate In Emphatic Warning to European Powers.

(By International News Service)
ROME—A stern warning to the world that Italy is ready to wage war if necessary was delivered by Premier Mussolini in a speech to the Italian senate today.

"We are preparing the men and the means for a war of quick decision," Il Duce said.

"The best defense is an offensive. In ten years Italy will have fifty million people in the mother country alone."

"Many men are needed to comprise the big battalions essential for our defense. The extent of our preparedness has been amply proved. The dispatch of two army corps to Libya and the drain on our army necessitated by the situation in Spain have not weakened us."

Wants Worthy Navy.
"Italy has more than the right to possess a worthy navy. It has a duty to do so."

"There never can be too many guns in proportion to infantry. Guns have always been called the 'Queens of Battle.'"

Il Duce paid tribute to his army officers and to his governmental associates.

"The offenders of the Italian army," he said, "constitute a hierarchy worthy of the highest respect. The question of unity of command in Italy has been solved by a policy of placing political strategy in the hands of the heads of the government."

Mussolini took occasion to praise recent growth of the Italian navy.

"During the last few years," he said, "it has given proof of its value. In 1941, Italy will have eight battleships, and of these four will be new ones."

"In the next war, rest assured that our battleships will not remain in their harbor."

HENDAYE, FRANCO - SPANISH BORDER—(INS)—Spanish Loyalists fighting desperately to stem the insurgent advance, today virtually halted the drive of rebel Generalissimo Francisco Franco's legions into Catalonia.

Violent fighting raged along miles of the front, virtually from Teruel to Barastro, some 40 miles north of the stronghold of Lerida, where the insurgents were knocking at the city's gates.

A communique issued at the menaced government seat of Barcelona, declared the insurgent advance from Fraga, near the Catalan border, had been held up and that fighting "continued everywhere with enormous intensity."

13 WINNERS IN SPRING DISPLAY CONTEST NAMED

$50 In Cash Prizes Mailed Out by Retail Merchants Association.

Prizes amounting to $50 in cash were mailed today to 13 winners of the Spring Display contest, conducted last week by the Retail Merchants Association in connection with Spring Display Days.

First prize of $25 was won by Miss Betty Davis, 290 Orange street, second prize of $10 went to Miss Eileen Gimbel, Broadway Park, and third prize of $5 by Mrs. Laura E. Reece, box 20, Ontario.

Mrs. Reece lost out on first place although her "short story essay" of 25 words, was best in the opinion of the judges, because she fell down on eight points in the identification of articles in windows, while the other two winners associated answered each of the association announced.

The Other Winners.

The other ten winners, who won $5 each were:

Mrs. Harold Pugh, 31 Clinton avenue; Mrs. M. Greenling, 163 South Mulberry street; Mrs. George Sherman, 648 Arlington avenue; George Sherman, 648 Arlington avenue; David Flockenier, 31 Clairmont avenue; Mrs. John R. Davis, 72 1/2 Distl avenue; Virginia Lou Davis, 207 Penn avenue; Jean Wells, 232 West Fifth street; Mrs. Edwin B. Davis, 207 Penn avenue, and Mrs. C. E. Flockenier, Clairmont avenue.

Miss Davis' essay was, "Why I Should Buy Now" was, "A purchase made now will assure me of new and exclusive styles; and will be the means of giving more people work and help end the depression."

Miss Gimbel's idea was, "Buy now and start the ball rolling toward a bigger and better buying season. It's not much from YOU, but YOURS and THEIRS make much."

Mrs. Reece was the only one of the top winners who advanced an economic reason favorable to the purchaser, that of taking advantage of depression low prices: "Greater dollar values are offered during periods of retarded buying. The coming upswing of business will show the wisdom of present purchases."

Several hundred persons took part in the contest, which involved visiting window displays of every store participating in the Display Days event.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 30, 1938

This is the first time Europe ever had two Napoleons at once.

Taxes are higher than ever, but the undistributed profits tax by some other name will smell sweeter.

The dictionary defines "axis" as "an imaginary line on which a body rotates." The "Berlin-Rome axis" grows more and more imaginary.

Recovery Programs.

INTELLIGENT people are realizing lately that once more this country is in an economic crisis. Leaders of opinion, recovering from their first incredulous daze, are telling plainly what they think about it and demanding action. Opinions and programs differ, but they fall mostly into two groups.

One group, represented by the weekly trade magazine Editor and Publisher, demands action of business, believing that it can do more than government to straighten things out. The other, represented by Walter Lippmann, liberal editorialist, puts the responsibility up to congress, saying: "Whatever is done ultimately about capital gains, undistributed profits and the high surtaxes, the congress should at the very least regard them as so immediately dangerous that emergency relief is necessary."

"Congress should temporarily reduce some of these taxes and it should temporarily suspend others, and it should at the same time temporarily increase the net expenditures for relief and public works."

"It should not worry now over the budget or heed the outcries of the deflationists, whether of the Right or of the Left. It should stake everything on the paramount task of inducing by tax relief and stimulating by government expenditure a great revival of private industry."

"If congress does that, it will have done what it has in its power to do, in order to meet the emergency and avert a catastrophe."

Conquering Yellow Fever.

FOR some time after discovery of the cause and the method of transmission of yellow fever, the only successful preventive work consisted of avoiding the bite of the disease-carrying mosquito. Conditions favoring the disease were controlled as far as possible. Many of the breeding places of the mosquito were destroyed. During the epidemic care was taken to prevent yellow fever patients from being bitten. Houses and rooms of victims were thoroughly disinfected and all mosquitoes found there killed. People in infected areas were taught to avoid mosquito bites, indoors or outdoors. A strict quarantine was enforced against ships from ports where yellow fever existed.

All these measures were useful and accomplished remarkable results. Yet without successful preventive inoculation and serum treatment the war was not won.

Now, Dr. Raymond B. Fosdick, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, reports the development of a new vaccine that has proved effective in South America. The vaccination of more than 3,800 people in Brazil and 2,000 in Colombia "gives every indication that efficient protection of populations exposed to jungle yellow fever is in sight," he says.

The vaccination of persons previously inoculated with the living virus has seemed to promise great success, too. Over 99 per cent of the vaccinated persons showed full or partial immunity. Here is conquest worthy of human intelligence.

Olympic Games Problem.

OFFICIALS of the British Amateur Athletic association have raised the question of boycotting the 1940 Olympic games in Tokyo. There are also groups in America who believe that Japan should be snubbed by the refusal of other countries to join in the games as planned.

This view is not widely held, however, if the poll of the American Institute of Public Opinion gives a true picture. It found only 39 per cent of the people in favor of a boycott and 61 per cent against it. More people favored boycotting the Olympic games in Germany two years ago; but the American teams participated, no international clashes occurred, and a precedent seems to have been established. There was recognition at the time that the German government made every effort to keep most of its guests in a pleasant frame of mind, slowing up for the duration of the games its more violent anti-Semitic activities and showing off its good points. If many American were persuaded to approve Nazism by this means, it was not enough to sway opinion here after the games were over.

The next Olympic games are still two years away. World conditions by 1940 may be so bad that the whole affair will be called off. Or they may be so improved that today's objectors will have forgotten their scruples against participation.

War on Children.

TEN months ago 3,800 children were sent from the Basque country to England to be sheltered and fed until conditions were better in their home land or until their scattered families could be found. The Basque Children's committee since then has sent back 1,800 of these unfortunate youngsters. They have rejoined their parents, though not many of them are in their former homes.

There are still 2,000 homesick Basque children who will remain in England indefinitely because their parents either are in prison, are refugees "in the worst bombed areas of Spain," or cannot be traced at all. It has been argued by Insurgent sympathizers that all those children should have been returned as soon as Franco's forces captured Bilbao. The committee answers that such children, on arrival in Spain, "are immediately placed in reformatories for re-education" according to Insurgent ideas. It considers that fate worse than a prolonged stay in England.

What the children themselves think, probably no one knows. It is their tragedy to suffer from quarrels they did not start and a war they cannot understand, to be torn from their families and made to feel the crushing pangs of terror, loneliness and insecurity. That is war.

Wherever Nazis or Communists gather for their own virtuous purposes, riots develop for no cause whatever.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

If east central Europe goes Nazi, the reason is economic. The economic barriers created by the Versailles treaty, then built up by the smaller states to "protect" themselves, or some sponsor state, have created a condition which will force merging with the larger powers. And the dominant larger power is Germany.

Even if there were no Hitler, no Nazis, none of the present "heroes," there would be strife, with minorities seeking to better their economic conditions and the large countries fighting over who should "capture" them in order to break their own intolerable economic bounds.

One of the best reviews of this situation is contained in an article by Dr. Karl Falk, "Strife in Czechoslovakia," written for the Foreign Policy association.

ECONOMIC PROBLEM

As Dr. Falk points out: "The Sudetic, Czechoslovak, and whole central European problem is of international economic as well as political significance."

"With all its other faults, the old Austro-Hungarian empire had the one virtue of constituting an economic unity in the Danubian basin. Since the war, to the detriment of all concerned, this unity has been disrupted, and the succession states have surrounded themselves with almost insurmountable trade barriers."

"In any attempt to build up a sounder economic system in the Danubian basin—and signs of such attempts are becoming evident—Germany feels that it should not be permanently excluded from the economic life of central Europe. Economically, both Germany and Czechoslovakia would stand to benefit by such co-operation."

"If a more than temporary settlement is to be reached in central Europe, Germany will have to be assured as much economic participation in that region as is compatible with the maintenance of the political independence and integrity of its eastern neighbors."

"To preserve the European balance of power, Britain and France will have to participate in such a settlement to insure that Germany's economic penetration does not mean political hegemony. If the great powers do not take an active part in guaranteeing the political status quo, the time may come when Germany will attempt a solution in its own way."

ATTITUDE "MUST CHANGE"

"The internal aspects of the Sudetic problem are of more immediate significance. As has been indicated, strategic reasons require the inclusion of the Sudetic areas if Czechoslovakia's independence is to be assured. If the Germans are to remain permanently within the Czechoslovak republic and are to become co-operating citizens, the basic attitude between the two races must change. Permanent internal peace can come to Czechoslovakia only when the German, Hungarian and other minorities are satisfied through receiving a greater degree of cultural and political autonomy and a greater participation in the affairs of the republic."

"Although the economic distress in the Sudetic areas is not Czechoslovakia's fault, it is its misfortune. A moderate, statesmanlike policy will be necessary to convince the dissatisfied minorities that they have more to gain by loyalty to the Czechoslovak state than by irredentism."

"The first 20 years of the republic's existence have not effaced century-old hatreds, but this does not mean that rapprochement is impossible."

"Viewed in the long run, if the Germans' economic condition is improved, and if they see continued evidence of the state's desire to secure their co-operation, they will become better citizens of Czechoslovakia. As such, they will not look so much to the reich for support and will refuse to be an instrument for the realization of possible reich aims."

"A policy of repression at present would involve the danger of returning to the breaking point of the relations between the Czech state and the German minority, as well as between Czechoslovakia and the Third Reich. Further Sudetic 'incidents' might easily become the 'provocation' leading Germany to take a step that would prove disastrous for all."

"In the relations between the Germans and the Czechs, somewhere the circle of mutual distrust must be broken. Instead of being a wedge separating the two countries, the Sudetic minority, if it is given its proper place and accepts its responsibility, could form a cultural bridge between Germany and Czechoslovakia."

It is neither good taste nor good judgment to fuss about small discomforts when one is spending the night in a Pullman car.

"IN THE SPRING, THE YOUNG MAN'S FANCY—!"

Listen, World!

She Ran Away—To Seven Husbands.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

She had seven husbands—at once. Didn't want them. Stayed with some of them only a night. Dreaded and fled from them all in time. Gave her heart to only one . . . and lived in a nightmare of remorse because of the rest. Yet still went on—and on—until . . .

Until she ended, a sobbing, sodden wreck, jailed with murderers, addicts and women of the streets.

Incredible? Yes—but true. Her name is Lillian Mondor. She's still young—only 26—and serving her term in a New York Penitentiary. You'll find her story in the March 23 issue of "ACTUAL DETECTIVE STORIES OF WOMEN IN CRIME." I wish I could put that story into the hands of every bewildered American youngster . . .

But why? Why should such a morbid case history be given to decent people?

BECAUSE THE IMPULSE WHICH DRAGGED THIS GIRL TO THE DEPTHS, MOVES IN ALL OF US . . . BETRAYING US ALL INTO SHAME AND APOLOGY.

We all want to be good—at the start. So did Lillian Mondor. She wasn't "naturally bad" . . . conspicuously reckless or restless. She was a nice, clean, American kid . . . at thirteen, honor student at her school . . . two years later, the adoring wife of John Gordon and, presently, the devoted mother of his three babies.

From 1924 to 1933—nine years, seemingly filled with simple happiness and peace. Then one morning she kissed her little boy goodbye and, without even a farewell note to her husband, she went away.

Went away because she could no longer face the fact which had lain like a coiled snake in her heart all those years—the fact of her secret marriage to a wandering gypsy at 13.

Full of little stories! Going to school, she'd seen his band, camped in a sand lot, hung around fascinated, as a child will. Been fascinated by his dancing . . . married him on impulse when the band moved on. Then, when the campfires leaped and the wild singing of the wedding celebration began, terror gripped her, she fled—returned to her parents' home at midnight, a wife in name only, a secret she vowed never to reveal.

And, with that secret still sealed within her, she married John Gordon, two years later—stars in her eyes, horror of herself in her heart.

A horror from which she was eventually to flee—and flee—into an escape that offered—no matter what shame or heartbreak it cost!

"But how silly!" you cry. "That first marriage wasn't real . . . she was just a child. She could have it annulled . . . it would have been so easy!"

Yes! I know—it always seems easy, looking back. But it didn't seem easy—then. It never does. Having yielded to one impulse, she quite naturally yielded to another. There was no solid, central plan in her life to which she could cling. She simply went from one wobbling urge to another—until presently she was running . . . running . . . running from the consequences . . . like a child in a maze, its way out.

She married seven men. She married each new man because she was trying to forget the man who had gone before . . . trying to escape from the horror and regret of that original concealed act. A baby running . . . actually, Lillian Mondor was a baby. As are nine-tenths of our criminals. Getting into new trouble and shame because they're trying to forget some old blunder.

"Infantilism," the psychologists call it. Natures that can't face reality . . . that are always trying to avoid consequences. Changing husbands. Changing jobs. Always seeking escape from the old life

. . . success in the new life. Never getting either.

There are quotations with Lillian Mondor's story, which explain that frantic search . . . explanations from Dr. R. V. Kraft Ebung, who knew more than any man on earth about twisted minds. Explanations which throw a terrific spotlight on your own life—and mine.

IF SHE COULD ONLY HAVE FACED THINGS AND CLEARED THINGS AS SHE WENT ALONG . . . LILLIAN MONDOR COULD HAVE BEEN SAVED.

Realizing—confessing—these are the processes by which sick souls are healed. That is why the Catholic church, in its wisdom, instituted CONFESSION. I am not a Catholic—you may not be. But the Confessional is good medicine.

Stop trying to escape your record. Face and clear it NOW. Tell your truth to some person—for their human nearness. TO GOD for His infinite power. Don't try to duck life any longer . . . IT CAN'T BE DONE.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

Two Words.

I must be getting old and fussy. I've developed a grudge against a pair of words.

Whenever I hear them, I feel the hair standing up on my neck. I curl up, inside. I give a low growl like a sleepy dog that's being teased.

It's too bad about me, of course. I suppose I've fallen out of step with the modern world. But just the same I don't like to hear a young fellow saying, "I sold myself to that prospect and put the deal over in a hurry."

The two words I don't like are "Selling Yourself." Our grandfathers didn't use them. They didn't even know what they meant. They sailed the seas and plowed the land and if they were merchants they sold things, not themselves.

I've had young fellows try to sell themselves to me. They smiled, made pleasant talk, seemed very interested in me and my affairs, and made me think what fine young men they were and how much they liked me. And when they heard me purring, they got right down to business and began their selling talks. . . . They put business on a personal basis. They made a refusal seem like an insult to an intimate friend. And they made me MAD.

. . . When I said "no" they looked hurt, like trustful children who'd just been told there wasn't any Santa Claus. And that made me twice as mad!

One of those disappointed salesmen complained to a friend of mine that he was afraid I hadn't liked his personality. His personality had nothing to do with my decision. He'd failed to sell because in my family at that time, we didn't need what he was trying to sell.

I don't see why anybody should throw himself in as a bonus when he's selling a useful, reputable article. I don't get that idea at all. It gives me the creeps. . . . And if you give me my choice of salesmen, I'll take a grumpy old shoe clerk I used to know, who growled and said hardly a word, but sold us shoes and saw that they were well-fitting and took our money and said goodbye. He should have been a bit more polite, but at least he was selling us Shoes and not Himself.

Perhaps I AM getting old and fussy, but I'm fed up on having people try to sell themselves to me. Somehow it seems such a long, long way from the sturdy Americanism we used to hear so much about.

Let's Look Around

Each Florida City "Points With Pride."

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

ORLANDO, Fla.—Looking around in Florida for a really attractive and well-balanced city, in which tourist business is appreciated but not absolutely essential to community well-being, this beautiful and thriving city of Orlando seems to meet all reasonable requirements.

Largest of Florida's inland cities, Orlando—approximately the size of Mansfield—is the county seat of Orange county and is regarded as the financial center of the state's citrus fruit industry.

Within easy access by motor from either coast, and with the appeal of having 33 lakes within the city limits, Orlando has long had a natural attraction for winter visitors and is able to nicely handle the doubled population which it ordinarily has for several months each year.

Typical of the beautification policy followed in justifying the city's slogan, "the city beautiful," are the surroundings of Lake Eola, within a couple of blocks of the business section, where exceptionally attractive landscaping and expert blending of colors in various flowers provides a delightful picture—with a 15-foot wall of sweet peas just now proving the center of interest.

Centrally located Lucerne lake, circled by a drive on which there are many fine homes, is also among the city's numerous beauty spots.

Having the advantage of 75 years of development, Orlando lacks the appearance of hastily thrown-together newness noted in a number of Florida cities and, in its appearance of substantiality, might easily be mistaken for a prosperous northern city of similar size—except that it is more adequately supplied with lakes and equable climate.

CONTINUING the idea that each Florida city must have something that distinguishes it from all others, Sanford—20 miles north of Orlando—is known as "the celery city," with the claim made that its surrounding Seminole county produces one-fourth of the celery grown in the United States.

Celery culture has been going on in and around Sanford for over 40 years, with a close combination of sandy loam and muck providing ideal conditions and an underground water system, fed from artesian wells, giving uniform moisture.

With an estimated 5,000 acres of celery under cultivation in this vicinity, the great celery fields at various stages of growth, provide an interesting sight.

In Sanford, also, is a municipal zoo that is said to be the largest in the state—in the number and variety of exhibits—tropical birds being especially featured.

Twenty miles north of Sanford we come upon De Land, a pretty little city of about 8,000 population, residents of which are exceedingly proud of Stetson university. This co-educational institution, which has high scholastic standing, was started fifty years ago as De Land academy, named after the founder of the town, but later became Stetson university when it was liberally endowed by John B. Stetson, of Stetson hats.

It is also in De Land that your attention is particularly attracted by the cathedral-arch effect of many streets, lined with live oaks festooned with Spanish moss and forming a complete archway over the streets.

Whatever may be the waning interest in county fairs in the north, they are still popular attractions in many parts of Florida, and the Volusia county fair, held in De Land each February, is regularly a big affair—possibly due to the exceptional agricultural versatility of De Land's back country.

PALATKA, a little further along toward the north, adds camphor plantations to its other agricultural activities, and also thrives
